A lesser mind tackles the holiday at hand

It being the beginning of April, the first day of April to be exact, my mind naturally turns to April Fool's Day. April Fool's Day is one of my favorite holidays, which makes it not unlike Thanksgiving, Christmas, Passover, St. Valentine's Day, Yom Kippur, St. Patrick's Day, Good Friday, Easter, Purim, May Day, the last day of school, the Fourth of July, Bastille Day, Labor Day, Jessica Tandy's birthday and Halloween.

We always celebrate April Fool's Day at my house. It's pretty much a traditional holiday. We gather around the tree while mom prepares a great meal with all the holiday fixings: turkey, mashed potatoes, matzo balls, cranberries, pumpkin pie, jelly beans and cider. By the time we finally eat dinner we're usually pretty tired, having lived through a long day during which a major family pet has died.

See, pets usually die during holidays at my house. That's just the way it's been for a while now. The pets are always glancing fearfully at the calendar. You can almost hear them mumbling to each other: "Oh God, another holiday is coming up. We're history."

Even with all this death, my family appreciates the true value of April Fool's Day. It isn't always pretty because, after all, the central theme of April Fool's day is deceit.

At my house we play real funny tricks on one another and people rarely get hurt (unless you count an occasional embarrassing incident in an emergency room). We all get into the act.

For instance, my sister's husband did a doozy last year. Sis caught him in bed with another woman and he yelled, "April Fool's!" I always thought it was pretty odd that it was July at the time, but nonetheless we all got a big chuckle out of it.

Some people think we take it all too seriously, but then again some people are God-hating Communists. April Fool's Day is almost a religious holiday to us. In fact, it's the best holiday, my very favorite, although Bastille Day has its moments. I'll be writing about that later in the year.

But I digress, which is something I don't usually do. The important and sad thing is that my family's all-time favorite pets are pretty much all dead now. Not that we've given up. We still have pets, including two dogs. One dog is older. His name is Dugan and he snoozes a lot and pees and eats and that's about it. He's great. Then there's Sula, who is female and young and cute. Not too cute, though, because she's going through a prolonged teething stage and she sometimes hurts me. That's pretty much where we stand this April Fool's Day, a great holiday that always makes me grateful for the things I love: pets, old Katharine Hepburn movies, left-wing political movements and chocolate.

Chocolate is the best thing about Easter, which is a great holiday. I'll be writing about Easter in a couple of weeks.

GW President flees Vista Hotel moments before arrest

by Janet Cooke

Ideal Hatchet Staff Writer

Documents uncovered by FBI agents reveal that GW President Stephen Joel Tractorbutt spent several hours with D.C. Mayor Marion Barry on the evening of his arrest at the Vista Hotel.

According to the FBI, Barry and Tractorbutt went on a "rampage . . . running around, doing things part Disneyworld, part Animal House, part Caligula, part Medallin, Columbia."

Sources report Tractorbutt met with Barry Jan. 18 to discuss renaming Pennsylvania Avenue, Tractorbutt Avenue. During the meeting, the men hit it off very well and decided to spend the afternoon and evening together.

Their first stop was Rice Hall on Barry's request where he wanted to "do some serious partying with Gail Short." He was referring to Gail "Tiny" Hand-some who couldn't join the two because of a previous engagement.

Tractorbutt and Barry then traveled to Tower Video and rented porn flicks: Crack Babes and Fat GW Vixens in Spandex, as well as tapes of old GW basketball games.

Then it was off to the Vista room 727 where Tractorbutt immediately dialed for room service and ordered bagels and lox. Barry called an old friend and ordered what he told Tractorbutt was only rock candy.

It is undetermined at this time whether or not Tractorbutt took a hit from the crack pipe which was circulated around the room, or whether he just sat there and scarfed down the lox.

WITNESSES SAW Tractorbutt in The Vista the night of Barry's criminal escapade.

Reached at home, Tractorbutt denies the charges. "Fuck you, Vain," he said. "I'm sick of your shit."

Residents of the Vista say they heard a lot of commotion in room 727 that night. "It was like a circus up there," said Manuel Noriega, a temporary resident of room 627 as part of the Hidden-Prisoner Act. "I heard hooved animals as well as trumpets and tambourines."

Noriega also heard the two men singing "Ebony and Ivory."

said he had "to make pee-pee" and, fortunately for him, never returned to the room.

The FBI is currently investigating the situation, and as of yet, no arrests have been made.

Reaction around campus to the Tractorbutt-Barry meeting has been a mixture of shock, hysterics and pride. "Stephen Joel Trachtenberg is the greatest president of the greatest University in the World," GWUSA president B.J. Morris said. "I stand beside his decision to be with Barry that night. I'm sure it was in the best interest of the school."

GWUSA President-elect Frankie Petridish thought it was an "excellent idea."

When he heard the news, Marvin Center Director DeMoron "Al Haig" Strong stormed into Tractorbutt's 8th-floor Rice Hall office and declared, "I'm in charge here."

This is reportedly the first time a GW administrator has been connected to drug involvement, although former president Floyd "I am a rich bastard" Elliot was known to get drunk and urinate off the top of the Academic Center.

Tractorbutt is expected to continue his duties as president but his advisors have warned him to stay away from Thurston Hall where his desire for drugs could be easily satisfied.

GW Vice Presdidn't Robby Churnhack, the next in line to the imperial presidency, refused to comment saying, "It's pure conjecture. I just hope I can move into his office real soon."

GW Drug Expert Gordo "P.R." McLain was passed out in a pool of his Jim Beam-induced vomit and was not able to comment.

Mediocrity sucks

Let's face it, GW is not the greatest and it doesn't suck. It's just average. We've got average students, as one look around the Thurston Hall lobby will tell you. We've got average professors, as you know when you make the terrible mistake of actually showing up for one of those yawn-inducing lectures. We've got an average ranking.

It happens in sports, too. We have a basketball team that is no longer the worst in the NCAA. Average. The University finally followed the will of the crowd by firing its basketball coach, who was the personification of average. But GW only fired Kuester after everyone else had given the axe to its coaches. You'd think we'd be able to lead the way in firing inept people. We certainly have enough of them.

And then there's drugs. We have drugs, just like everybody else, but we don't have enough drugs to dull ourselves against the stupidity of an administration dumb enough to advertise a housing option that doesn't exist. And hey, if they were going to advertise for a building GW didn't own, why didn't they go all out and make it the Trump Plaza? God, imagine the publicity we would have had.

Scandals are average here. We have an occasional bust or student passing out, but nobody talks about it and it's not nearly as exciting as those frat boys in Washington State who were allegedly having sex with sheep. Now that's a story. But if we did that here, everybody would feel sorry for the sheep.

This is Sominex City. One protest all year. A gay-bashing, Commie-hating Congressman that no one takes seriously anyway visited campus. No one was seriously injured in the protest, which made it totally snoozeville for us journalists. We'd like to see GW liberals spill a little blood. So get out there and get yourself injured over something you believe in, or something you don't, just so long as you get hurt and we can write about it on the front page. And then you can write whiny letters about how insensitive we are — letters that we sit around and laugh at — and then maybe we will have a scandal.

So you see the only way to get a scandal started is for this quality newspaper to start it. You, those we cover, are too goddamn (sorry Marlo) average for words.

The best SA

We'd like to take this opportunity to welcome the new batch of GW Student Association senators, all of whom are as intelligent as your average wood chip. The new guys and gals on the SA block have their work cut out for them. Fortunately, though, if history is a guide, the new team will ignore its work and focus primarily on inbreeding.

We're feeling a bit negative about the new senate because we loved the old senate so much. Think of all the stuff that the outgoing senators were able to accomplish. And the reason they were able to get so much done was that they put aside personal differences and worked on the issues at hand. That's why students were so well served over the course of the last year. The student senate really reflected the range of interests and values that encompass this, as John David Morris says, "happy, great, fun University."

While we are grateful as can be that the outgoing senators put aside personal differences and avoided power trips, we can't say the same for the outgoing SA president. It's been a long four years with John David Morris, who has been a regular Oscar the Grouch for too Goddamn long (sorry, Marlo, we know how you feel about profanity). We are tired of Morris and his shouting and bickering with strangers. It's exhausting to even think of all the constant conflicts Morris inspired. If he had just used his tenure to go out and meet the students, then perhaps Morris wouldn't have come to be known as a prematurely aging loner whose psyche is wrapped by his inhibitions.

Alas, it was not meant to be. The SA president devoted his year to developing policy, making much needed changes and studying the Talmud. And the GW community was left without the emphasis on public relations that was desperately needed.

We can only hope that the next year will bring us a student government that is less concerned with what it does and more concerned with how it looks. We need an SA where the members are a little more interested in how they are perceived and a lot less interested in developing all the complicated and relevant legislation we've become too accustomed to reading about.

These characteristics, so often portrayed, are what makes me proud to be a Colonial. To all the individuals who participate and lead these groups, you have my heartfelt admiration.

I am writing this article advanced with firsthand experience. As a member of the Student Association, it is my job to deal directly with each funded organization to help them carry out their daily activities. These

Columbiayaleharvard grad tells how he saved GW

I went to Columbiayaleharvard so what I have to say is above the reproach of any being this side of Jesus Christ.

And that reminds me of a story about my early school days in the Bronx. Once in wood shop, I was carefully and painstakingly painting a bird house I had spent countless, countless hours making, when my teacher approached me. Mr. Outawitz looked over my shoulder, munching on a fresh kinish his wife had packed in his lunch. He stopped me and said, "Stevie, why did you paint your bird house fluorescent yellow?" I said I wanted even the pigeons on Long Island to be able to spot it. Then he asked why I had painted my name in big, orange letters on both sides of the house. I said I wanted all the cuckoos who stayed there to know who had built it. Then he said, "Steven, it is bad enough that your bird house is lopsided, full of gaps and big enough to hold an alley full of overweight cats, but don't you think this is a little too obnoxious. Maybe even pretentious?"

I absorbed every syllable of Mr. Outawitz's criticism and explored every facet of its meaning with my precocious little brain. I then proceeded to repeatedly beat him over the noggin with my work of art. Damn, if his wife didn't make one mean kinish.

So I would like to thank the late Mr. Outawitz for inspiring me to pursue a career in academia. And "academia" rhymes with "anemia" which I suffered from as a student at Columbiayaleharvard. But I bravely battled back to become the great figure of a man I am today.

The time has come, the Walrus said, to speak of other things, for, as Plato said sometime earlier, "our discussion is on no trifling matter, but on the right way to explain my conduct." In contemplating Plato's life his words ring with irony. If only he had spent less time fiddling while all Rome burned down around him, maybe he could have found a sculptor to make a bust of him that had eyes.

Speaking of fiddling, I was playing a mean Little Walter-riff on my harmonica the other day in the office — it was between my three and four o'clock feedings — when I remembered a rather magnificent article I once wrote for that rag, The Hartford Courant, about how fraternities build character. When I shake the hand of a member of our Greek system today, I am filled with a feeling of solidarity and strength that makes me smile just so perfectly for the news photographers. Greeks are truly servicing the community and will benefit our little slice of the nation's capital (a great breeding ground for my kind of honest, rigorous academics) even more in the future. When I think how they will help head trustee Oliver T. Scarr and my Rice Hall associates by letting Frat Row become another vital office building in our fair city, I am almost overcome with elation.

The brilliant Spanish painter Nietzsche once said to me, "Herren-Moral und Sklaven-Moral" along with some other gibberish. He was right — be Master of morality and the world is your slave. The years I spent at Columbiayaleharvard, especially in those lonely moments in my dorm room, made me yearn to master — but I saw no light at the end of my philosophical tunnel.

When I first encountered The George Washington University through applying for its presidency, I was reminded of that black emptiness of a hollow void. It made University of Hartford look like a juicy Thanksgiving feast with all the trimmings, like cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie and those little doughy things in the gravy. To quote Dante's eloquence in his epic sonnet, "Elmer Gantry and Estella": what a dump.

But here I've turned things around just as I did everywhere else. I used by Columbiayaleharvard degree to intimidate others, to get unwarranted press coverage, to hire leading minds like H.R. (Bob) Cronyneck from equally high-priced and, therefore, equally intellectual universities. In other words I made this university what it is today. Just look at how much more your parents' money pays for compared with when before I arrived. You're paying for a decent basketball coach, courteous nutritional workers, my fund-raising trips to Florida, flora and fauna improvements, the mortgage on my luxurious house that I only use for fund raising purposes. Like one of my old friends from Columbiayaleharvard — which I might have forgotten to mention is a prestigious university that I have several degrees from — if you need tuba players in your band, raise tuition and buy the Philharmonic.

I began this piece with Jesus and I'd like to end with him. I, too, was once unanimously and unquestionably hailed as a Savior before you — my beloved, tax-paying little people. And like all good Jews I, too, was later persecuted by those I saved. But here the comparison stops. Jesus, let's face it, did not know how to handle his public relations. Remember that ruckus in the Temple? Now that was poor spin control. People don't like riddles and parables, either. Straight talk, one liners, sound bytes — that's what make America my homeland.

This happens to recall a time I was attending Columbiayaleharvard. My wonderful Yiddish mother had sent me two ties as a birthday present, so when I flew home for Passover I wisely put on one to make her happy. When I walked in the door mother looked at me, then at my tie and said, "Steven, didn't you like the other tie I bought you?"

Druggie RA responds

I am writing in response to the responses to The GW Spank-It's assault on the University's leniency about drugs and the RAs who are implementing the University's drug policy. You, the Spank-It's fascist editorial board, say that Resident Assistants haven't been doing enough to take control of the drug problem. People have been writing in to say that you people are dweebs. I wish to add my nasal voice to the chorus.

I know, therefore I whine. I am an RA and I am sitting here in my cozy little apartment, er, residence hall room. And I just want to say that I went through a lot to become an RA — I actually had to fill out a form and be interviewed by people who I knew well (that set me up for the position) and only wanted me to prove that my IQ was larger than my shirt size. I went through all that (I think I went through a hell of a lot more trouble becoming an RA than Cory Aquino ever had to go through to become president) and I didn't go through it all just so that some bunch of Nazis could say I'm not responsible and not doing a good job.

I really think it was insensitive of your paper to even bring up the issue of drugs. It shows how little you Gorbachev-loving, foreign card-driving nihilists in the press care about your community. You make us look bad — hold on a minute, I have to get the door. My supplier just knocked. I'll be back.

OK, I'm back and I'm more mad than ever. I work hard here and you guys don't appreciate it. You guys say that we should get tough on drugs when it is obvious to anyone with a pulse that you are on drugs when you are writing those editorials. Look at your paper. You endorse losers for public office and then you yell at us for voting against the losers. You print the whinings of people who you mistakenly assume can write simply because they can type. You are rotten and I have enjoyed sitting here writing about how rotten you are and if you don't go out of your way to print my single-spaced, barely readable column in your lousy paper then I will be forced to call the editors at home and annoy them until you break down and print my piece about how mad I am.

Please try to do a better job in the future or I will be forced to play my part in the never ending effort to abolish the First Amendment.

I do a great job. Just ask anybody. Just ask, for instance, me. Or ask the people in housing who stop by every year and have a few drinks with me and say that I am doing my part on the war on drugs and then they say they want to rehire me. And I really

Bill Wrong explains it all to you

There have been some interesting writings recently in scholarly magazines which you lowlives don't read. You are, in my unequalled opinion, dog shit. So I thought I would take time out from watching "Masterpiece Theater" repeats long enough to straighten you out. As you undoubtedly remember, I have already made clear my position (which is, per usual, the correct position) on Greeks at GW, and on the tendency of all of us to alleviate the stresses and strains of academic such and such and blah blah blah.

In the past my writings have been controversial. This is because people — specifically you, the oh-so-average reader — have not been intelligent enough to understand what I am writing about. This has mistakenly been regarded as my fault or responsibility, when in fact it is the obvious result of a generation of idiots raised on "Brady Bunch" repeats and Hi-C soft drinks. If you are stupid, and you are, then that is your responsibility, just as it is your responsibility for dressing like humans, which is also something that so many slutty young women at GW are unable to do. I cannot take the heat for the fashion transgressions of women who think that life began with hair mousse.

All of which is to say, at great and needless length (which is my customary writing style), that today I wish to systematically examine snobbery as a tool in writing. We should, if we seek to systematically examine an issue, utilize snobbery and elitism to whatever extent possible. We should, in any case and at any given point in time, do what we can to break down any given problem into many zillions of elements. The next step is to beat the life and meaning out of those elements, making certain that those elements are completely boring, void of life and of little or no interest to the vast majority of readers.

After we have accomplished that, after we have made sure that every single reader on the face of the Earth is now completely turned off by the subject at hand, we can go further. We can make sure that our writing style is especially dull. We can take a systematic approach to our own writing, and we must do this or else we will find our essentially meaningless motion pictures of our era).

Which brings us back to our original numerator in the equation at hand: snobbery. The element of snobbery is elemental, fundamental and blah blah blah. Snobbery is essential if one is to distance oneself from the no-good slime that reads what God-given minds like mine spew out. Snobbery helps to separate reader and writer. It enforces a much-needed intellectual apartheid. If the writer writes in a way that is in any way coherent or fun, then the writer is betraying his cause, the ultimate cause being the confusion and alienation of the reader. Snobbery plays a key role in maintaining the systematic separation. Snobbery is, in a word, great.

Are you bored yet? Well, you should be. Forgive me for being so unmitigatedly whimsical, for I understand that humor can be a much-utilized part of a writing experiment and so I have placed it here toward the end of my systematic evaluation, which I most certainly hope has not been offensive to any of the weenies out there who have been wasting their time by reading it. We should disperse now, one from the other, renewed and invigorated by my words of wisdom. We should change the world and make it exactly the way I want it, the way it would be if everyone was locked in a room with his or her own fears and fantasies. We must do our part in ridding the world of its diversity, amusement and compassion.

newspapers and magazines overtaken by interesting, witty writers. This will not do. If this were to happen, then the literary life and the unbridled joy of over-analyzing everything would come to a premature end. I would have to stop writing and begin work as a male stripper. This would not work because there is nobody currently living who would want to see how I could fill a G-string.

Returning to the topic at hand, I must say that if writers were to examine interesting things in an interesting way, then we would not have as much room as we presently do for elitism and snobbery. This would, in effect and speaking from an intellectual point of view, make me cry as long and as hard as you yahoos out there did during E.T. (a film I found to be typical of the mass-produced and

SGBF honors ex-Klan member

by Smiley Reilly

Biased & Heartless Staff Writer

Prominent racist, former Grand Poobah of the Klu Klux Klan and state representative David Duke (R-La.) is scheduled to be honored for his contributions to the civil rights movement by the national alumni club of GW's School of Government and Business Frustration.

Malcolm Chickchecker, president of the Young Black College Student Union, opposed the alumni group's awarding of Duke with "The Martin Luther King Jr. Activist of the Year" award.

"I'm not gonna come right out and call him a racist," Chickchecker said. "The fact that he advocates white supremacy, public floggings and a return to slavery doesn't necessarily make him a racist. But it does make him a bit unworthy of the award."

Duke adamantly claims he deserves the award for his contributions to local government and the example he sets for warped blowhards everywhere. "I've worked hard and stepped on a lot of black people to get where I am today. You gotta respect that in a guy."

"Deep down, I'm very concerned about the racial divisions in our nation. I fear that one day blacks may actually be 100 percent free. Then I'll have to take all my white robed buddies and go to Africa and start my own country called Whitebeeria."

SGBF Dean Benji Burdetsky, who illegitimately fathered GW Trivia Guru Gary Greenbaum, was perplexed by the brouhaha over the award. "I don't know what's so bad about this guy. I didn't even know he was racially insensitive. I didn't even know who he was. I thought he was some guy in English royalty."

GWUSA Propagandist J. David

Maurice was pleased with the selection of Duke. "This is the greatest university in the world," he preached. "Only at GW can a true American with unique vision be honored for being a complete asshole. You gotta love it."

"I stand by my decision," said SGBF alumni dictator Harvey Jackoff. "We must continue to honor slimy weasels. Being one myself, I see the need to continue this trend so maybe someday a slimy weasels like myself can be honored."

The honor beset upon Duke was co-sponsored by the Rev. James Beveled, president of the National Committee Against Religious Bigotry and Sun Myung Moon Bashing.

Rev. Beveled, a former civil rights activist, supported the honor, saying Duke is a close, personal friend of the Unification Church and has received the distinguished "Moonie of the Year" award.

Matluck beefs it up in MC men's room

by Hairy Povich

National Inquirer Staff Writer

GW Physical Plant workers armed with monkey wrenches and lubricating jellies were called into the Marvin Center's ground floor men's room yesterday to forcibly extract GW sophomore R. Allyn Matluck's penis from a "Glory Hole" — carved between restroom stalls for men to have anonymous sex.

According to a security guard who was stroking himself by a urinal at the time, Matluck was using the hole to have cheap, smelly sex with fellow Young American's for Freedom member Christopher "White Boy" Topping in the neighboring stall, but Matluck was not able to pull out his penis because GW Housekeeping officials coated the hole with Crazy Glue.

Matluck — harshly criticized for saying he advocated the annihilation of all "pansies, pinkos and pudpullers" — confessed that he had been repressing his own sexuality by exerting his energy through ROTC military maneuvers in order to be close to what he referred to as "those macho hunks of meat in uniform all greased up with war paint."

Security became aware of Matluck's activity in the men's room when they heard Topping making "loud piggy sounds." However, witnesses said they heard Topping shouting fervently throughout the anal intercourse, "If we unite we can conquer the world."

"When we found them, they were all sweaty and trying to yank the big guy's pecker out of the stall," University Police Inspector J.D. Hardwell said. "They were really havin' a good time. I'm bringing Curtis down here tomorrow night and we're going to give it a whirl."

Matluck defended the illicit bath-

Berlin Wall rebuilt around law center

by Puckster Detersod

Smiley's Damron Book Source

Following the destruction of the Berlin Wall in East Germany, GW's National Law Center has decided to reconstruct the structure around the NLC.

NLC Dean Jerk Freeforall said he decided to rebuild the wall after the NLC ranked 23rd in the U.S. in a recent issue of U.S. News and World Report.

"I'm tired, sick and sick-and-tired of constantly saying GW is in the top 20 schools and then appearing like a stupid, asinine schmuck when we don't really rate that high," he said.

He said since the NLC can't be ranked in the United States' top 20, he will rank the school as the absolute best by seceding from Washington, D.C. and creating a separate country named Friedenthonia, founded on the exclusionary and elitist principles of Albania.

Freeforall said since he previously spent so many countless hours in the NLC composing trite, cliché-ridden poems to send to GW Hatchet editors, he will now devote his entire 3-hour day to the new project.

Associate Nazi-wench Support Dean Teresa-with-no-"h" Quartz said construction on the NLC wall, which includes a 35-foot cement barricade with electrified barbed-wire on top, will begin sometime during the Program Board's annual Spring Fling.

Additional construction to the NLC, in conjunction with the Metro system, will include a private, underground passageway which runs from Pennsylvania Avenue to the Supreme Court, used to clandestinely transport guest speakers from the Capitol and the court to Friedenthonia.

"We wanted to be able to invite people of our own interests to the NLC and not have to tell anyone else because all you undergraduates are too retarded to comprehend speeches by anyone who goes to, or graduated from law school," Quartz said.

"If you don't believe me, just listen to the ominous vocabulary John 'I'm JFK' Badlose used at your stupid senate meetings," she added.

GW President Stevie Bulldozerberg said he originally opposed the NLC's decision to build the barricade, but later decided as long as the NLC renames one of the buildings after him, he didn't object.

When informed of Bulldozerberg's request, Freeforall said, "He can fuck himself. With letters proportionate to his ego, his name is too Goddam (sorry Marlo) long to fit on any building on the face of this earth."

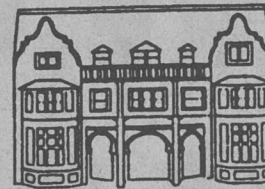

Despite opposition from the White House, the NLC will block all transmission signals from WRGW and install a helicopter pad on the roof to transport NLC senators Lulu Salty and Skippy Heckler to the Starvin Center for occasional representation in the SA senate, according to External Marital Affairs Dean Susan Medallion.

"Since we don't read the Hatchet," Heckler said, "we don't want or need to get out of the NLC very much."

For other NLC students, no transportation service will be provided. "Now

President, Marshall 'rekindle old flame'

by Pat Rice Hall

I Will Survive

GW administrators Stephen Joe Tractorbutt and Jill Sandcastle were found "rekindling an old flame" yesterday, according to Security and Safe Sex officials.

"We found them making out in front of Rice Hall at 3 a.m.," SSS Director J.D. Hardwell said. "Her blouse was unbuttoned and let's just say the President had it all hanging out."

Hardwell said security caught the couple by surprise. "Tractorbutt quickly buttoned his pants and straightened his tie," he said. "Jill just stood up and started fixing her hair. She told us if we kept it quiet she'd give us free drinks at Garretts."

GW Vice Presidents Walter Corpse and Hotrod French were discovered moaning in the bushes outside the hall as they filmed the lovers with a hand-held camcorder. Under security interrogation, both VPs admitted they planned to sell the tape to GWTV.

"Tractorbutt is GW's Rob Lowe," Hardwell said, noting he and his ex-wife (the blond woman who works at the cashiers) have already viewed the video several times.

According to Tractorbutt, he and Sandcastle were lovers when they worked at Boston University. "We've just been friends since Francine, but in that blue skirt and white silk blouse last night," Tractorbutt said while drooling at the mouth, "she just brought back some hot and heavy memories."

When asked for comment, Francine Tractorbutt said she "wasn't exactly waiting around for Steve."

GWUSA President-elect Frank Petrishlong said it was an "excellent idea," but he wasn't ready to comment because he is working on a mandatory three-credit class to orient students with the uses of a doorknob.

"I have my tool box and I'm ready to go," Petrishlong said. "It's great to see GW administrators getting along so well. I'm sure I won't have any problems with them next year."

Vice President Bobby Churn-yuck said he was shocked Sandcastle "went for Steve."

"Like I told the kids at the VIVA conference, I've lost 30 pounds and my wife said it's like making love to a new man," he said. "Of course, saying I'm the better catch would be pure conjecture."

GWUSA President John David Moron said he is "outraged" about Tractorbutt's infidelity, but added, "This is the greatest university in the world."

Vice President for Sexual Acts Delaine Sweatson said he is investigating the incident. "This doesn't look good," Sweatson said while sitting topless in the newly installed GWUSA bathtub. "I'm sure there are some misdated memos behind the incident."

In Washingtonian's most recent Tractorbutt ad, "What I Love About Jill," the President said his favorite place is nestled in Jill's busom and favorite activity is bopping Jill.

'X' marks the video G-spot

by Yo Mama

Videocassettes changed American entertainment values. With a choice of thousands of comedies, dramas and action adventures just five minutes from home, staying in became the norm. But no one has the video industry to thank more than the makers of X-rated movies.

Once, it used to be shameful to be caught in the red-light district sneaking a peak, but now, viewing pleasures of the flesh and waxing the dolphin can be done comfortably in the privacy of one's own home. For those not too familiar with the genre of pornographic flicks, this article should help provide a better understanding of what makes an X-rated movie good and a beginner's list of movies to see.

The early 80s saw the dawn of hard-core porn. Classics like Debbie Does Dallas, The Devil and Miss Jones and Insatiable provided a solid foundation for X films to come. Debbie Does Dallas is the tale of a small-town girl who moves to the big city — Dallas — where she becomes a Dallas Cowboy cheerleader and gets involved with some pretty big matters.

The Devil and Miss Jones tells of a girl who cuts a deal with Mephistopheles himself, so she can be red hot.

Insatiable stars the famous Marilyn Chambers who somehow finds a way to please five men at the same time. See if you can figure out how. All three films were initiated depictions of graphic sex for home video. All three were landmark movies. All three are good.

The mid-80s saw a lull in quality X-rated productions. Many low-budget films came out because the true video boom had yet to take place. But in 1986 when VCR sales began to skyrocket, the upward shot of porn took place.

New Wave Hookers is perhaps regarded as the best modern X-rated movie. Directed by the renowned Dark Brothers, this film is one of the most innovative and hardest core porn movies. Ginger Lynn stars in the neoclassic with the infamous Traci Lords, who somehow entered porn at the ripe age of 14. The film explores a variety of positions never depicted before, as well as introducing interracial porn to the "X" scene.

Among the most recent attempts to spice up the industry include the making of films geared towards certain tastes. White Bunbustars takes a good look at anal sex, while Double Penetration explores the world of, well, it's kind of obvious, isn't it?

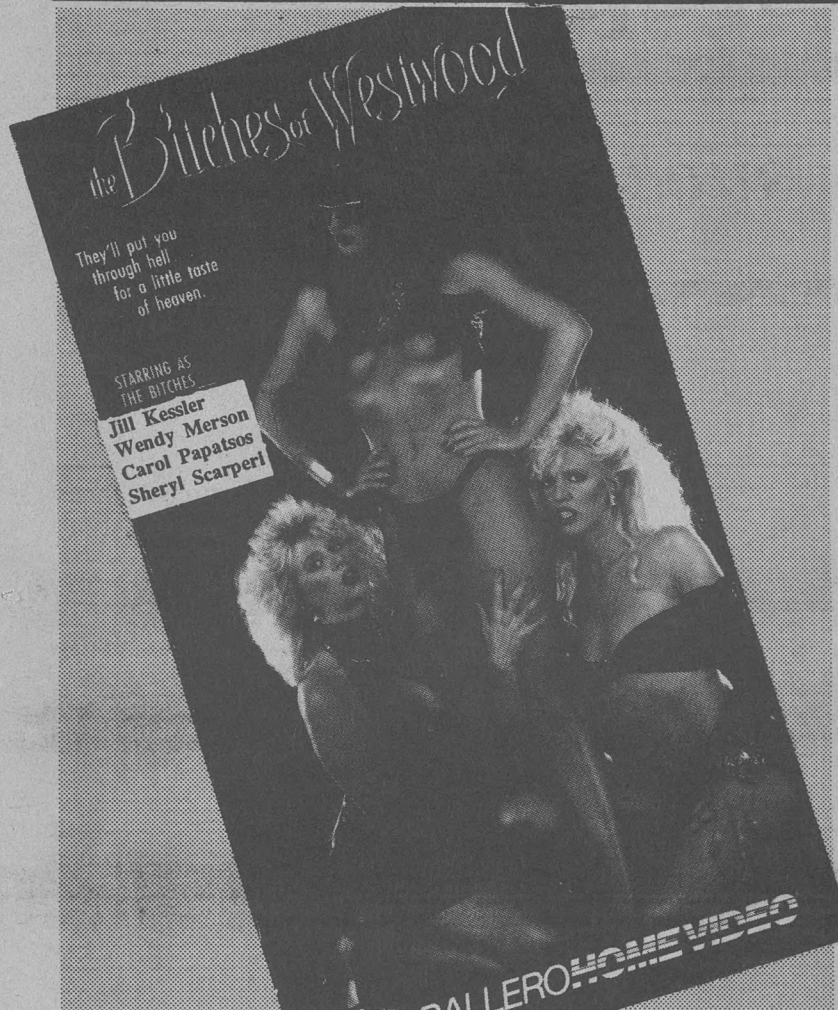

My personal favorite specified-market film is Bodacious Tatas, which also speaks for itself.

A popular X-rated gimmick is to take a popular "real" movie, build a story based on that movie and then alter the name ever so slightly, hopefully employing the tactic of name recognition. Such examples include When Larry Ate Sally, The Load Warriors, The Bitches of Westwood and The Sperminator.

Another new venture in the field has been sequels. Yes, there are even sequels to X-rated movies. The most famous and arguably the highest-quality sequel is The Devil and Miss Jones Part IV — A New Beginning.

The point to make is that not all dirty movies are the same. They have characters, stories and good sexual depictions. But they are not all good. Some are better than others. It takes a real connoisseur to find a high-class X-rated movie. The best advice, however, is to never judge a dirty movie by its boxcover. A good rule of thumb is the more seductive the cover shot, the less seductive the movie.

Porn expert Adam Hans contributed to this report. Some of these films and others are available at Tower Video

Red Hots shake their little chili peppers for world

by Pussy Galore

Trouble just seems to follow those Red Hot Chili Peppers where ever they go. In support of their latest funky-funky album, Mother's Milk, the band has been traversing across the United States, leaving behind tales of shame, degradation and lust.

The first incident occurred when the Chili Peppers played at George Mason University. According to a GMU student, lead singer Anthony Kiedis pinned her to a wall backstage and whipped out his penis, which, she reported, is only about as big as a dried-up chili pepper. Kiedis received a 70-day jail sentence for the attack, but is appealing the verdict on account that he wasn't really exposed, but wearing a sweatsock on his male member.

At a recent concert in Daytona, Florida, two of the Red Hot Chili Stuffers were arrested for simulating sexual acts on a woman in the audience. Flea, the bass-player of the band, grabbed the woman and ran through the crowd with the little tart on his shoulders. He then threw her onto the sand and knelt on her legs, screaming at her to perform sexual acts on him (you know, the basic copulation, oral stimulation stuff). While this was going on, drummer Chad Smith attempted to yank the chick's bathing suit bottom off.

MTV veejay Julie "Yes I am a coked-up slut" Brown intervened with the disruption, hysterically claiming that in fact, she had already arranged for the Red Hots to join her in a little backstage romp after the show, and that they were wasting their energy on some no-name babe with big breasts. Apparently, the band's contract for the MTV-sponsored performance, stated that they must engage in an obligatory gang-bang with Brown after the show.

Daytona police said they weren't that concerned with the lascivious incident, claiming this kind of stuff happens on the beach all the time.

In comparison to the other wild performances, the Red Hot Chili Dinger's concert at Lisner Auditorium last Fall seemed relatively tame. Until now...

GW Student Health Services has reported a significant increase in pregnancies, all with a due-date of delivery around the middle of August. You may also note that the numerous due-dates all fall exactly nine months from the Chili Pepper's performance at the University. Mere coincidence? Probably not.

In yet another report, Program Board Chair St. Mary Conneely confessed that, during the sound check, the Red Hot Chili Schleppers pulled her on stage and forced her to gyrate and writhe with them to their hit song, "Catholic School Girls Rule." With a flushed face and a slight Irish brogue, St. Mary related her ordeal to the GW Spank-It.

"It was simply terrible," she gasped, "That awful sacreligious song, my plaid kilt all askew. Afterwards, I immediately ran to the Newman Center for confession."

After the show, St. Mary ventured backstage and engaged in some rather unholy acts of contrition (and, possibly, conception). She was later joined by PB concert chair, Tina Grow-pot-ski, who said, "Well hell, these guys are definitely not Frank Zappa, but since we don't have enough money to get him here, they'll have to do." Numerous other GW females lined up by the Red Hot Chili Schlöng's bus to be stuffed with sweatsocks.

Women's Issues Now condemned the unruly acts of the girls stating, "If they absolutely had to do those things, at least they could have done them with someone more sensitive to women, someone like Barry Manilow or Julio Iglesias. What can you expect from a guy with a name like Flea anyway?"

When confronted with the news of the after-concert scandal, Vice President in charge of Student Sexual Affairs Bob "Slim-Jim" Chernak said, "I told you so. These hooligans were nothin' but trouble from the start. Geez, what can expect from men that make a practice out of sticking K-mart brand sweatsocks on their penises?"

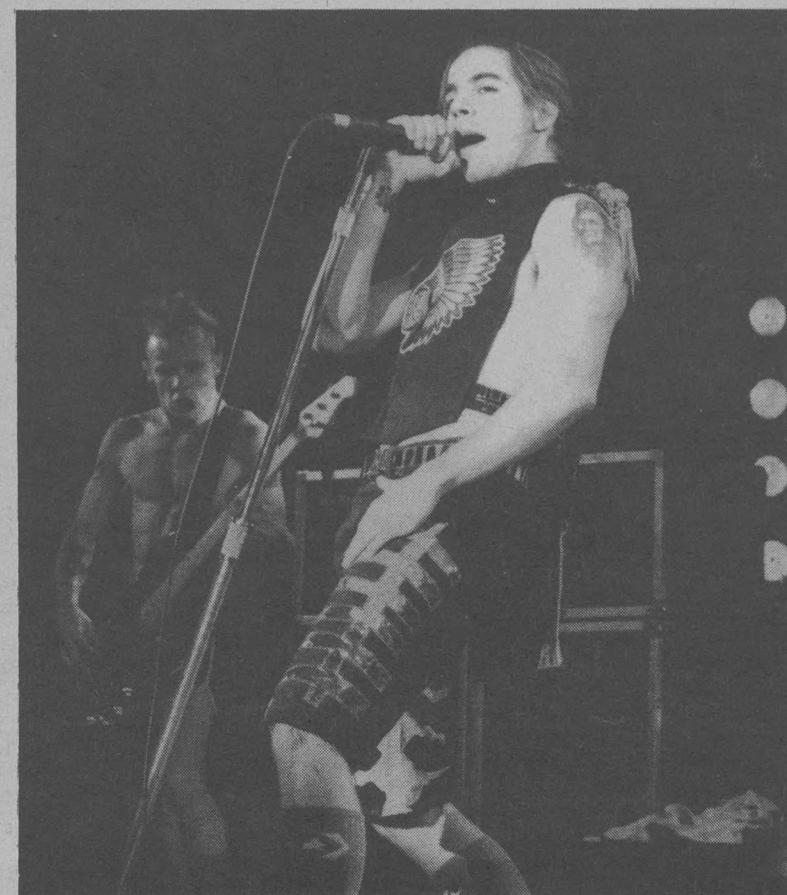

The GW Spank-It caught up with the Red Hot Chili Dicks and asked them about the sexual inuendos and acts which seem to permeate their tour this time. "Aw, shit man, I dunno. I mean, we called our album Mothers Milk and then put this really voluptuous chick on the cover, and this tour is called the 'Mothers Milk Tour' so the whole breast-obsession thing starts poppin' around in my head," Kiedis said. "These chicks want us, man," Flea stated. "Just look at our sexy tattoos and our skateboarder bods. We also printed a t-shirt of Madonna masturbating, moanin' our name. And we all know she is the token female for society. Shit, if she wants us, every chick must want us!"

The next performance of the Red Hot Chili Wankers is scheduled for the University of Maryland in College Park. School officials have ordered hundreds of chastity belts from the Pleasure Chest in Georgetown in preparation for the concert. "We don't want any scandalous incidents like what happened at GW and Daytona," an administrator said. "I mean, we already had such a media fiasco concerning our basketball team, I just don't think we can afford to have any more scandals here." The administrators plans to outfit every female in the audience with the chastity belts. When the band was given this information, they looked at each other despondently for a few moments. Kiedis then perked up grinning sinisterly and replied, "Hell, we'll just get MTV to tape the show and have them bring Julie Brown along for the after-concert entertainment!"

"Yo babe! Suck on this pepper," taunts Kleids.

Learn the Gelman Secrets in 10 quick, fun, easy steps ✂✂✂

Monkeys are key to library success

The real story of a returned book

1. Books deposited by library users.

2. Robot purchased from former Pentagon contractor for $5 million — paid for by “voluntary” library fee — records books as returned to library, then shreds every third one. Leftovers are placed on conveyor belt.

3. Robot removes books from belt labeled as rejects — those written after 1900, ones with “holds” pending or any others with high circulation rates — and places them between Gelman and Lisner Auditorium in the land fill, recently turned into a park.

4. Three-tiered aging process begins. Books are flogged with water from quad drainage system.

5. Books then sit on a “Wheel of Fortune”-like Lazy Susan under 800 watt bulbs for 75 years while aged to perfection. During the process, books dusted with cigarette ash collected from lounges and study areas.

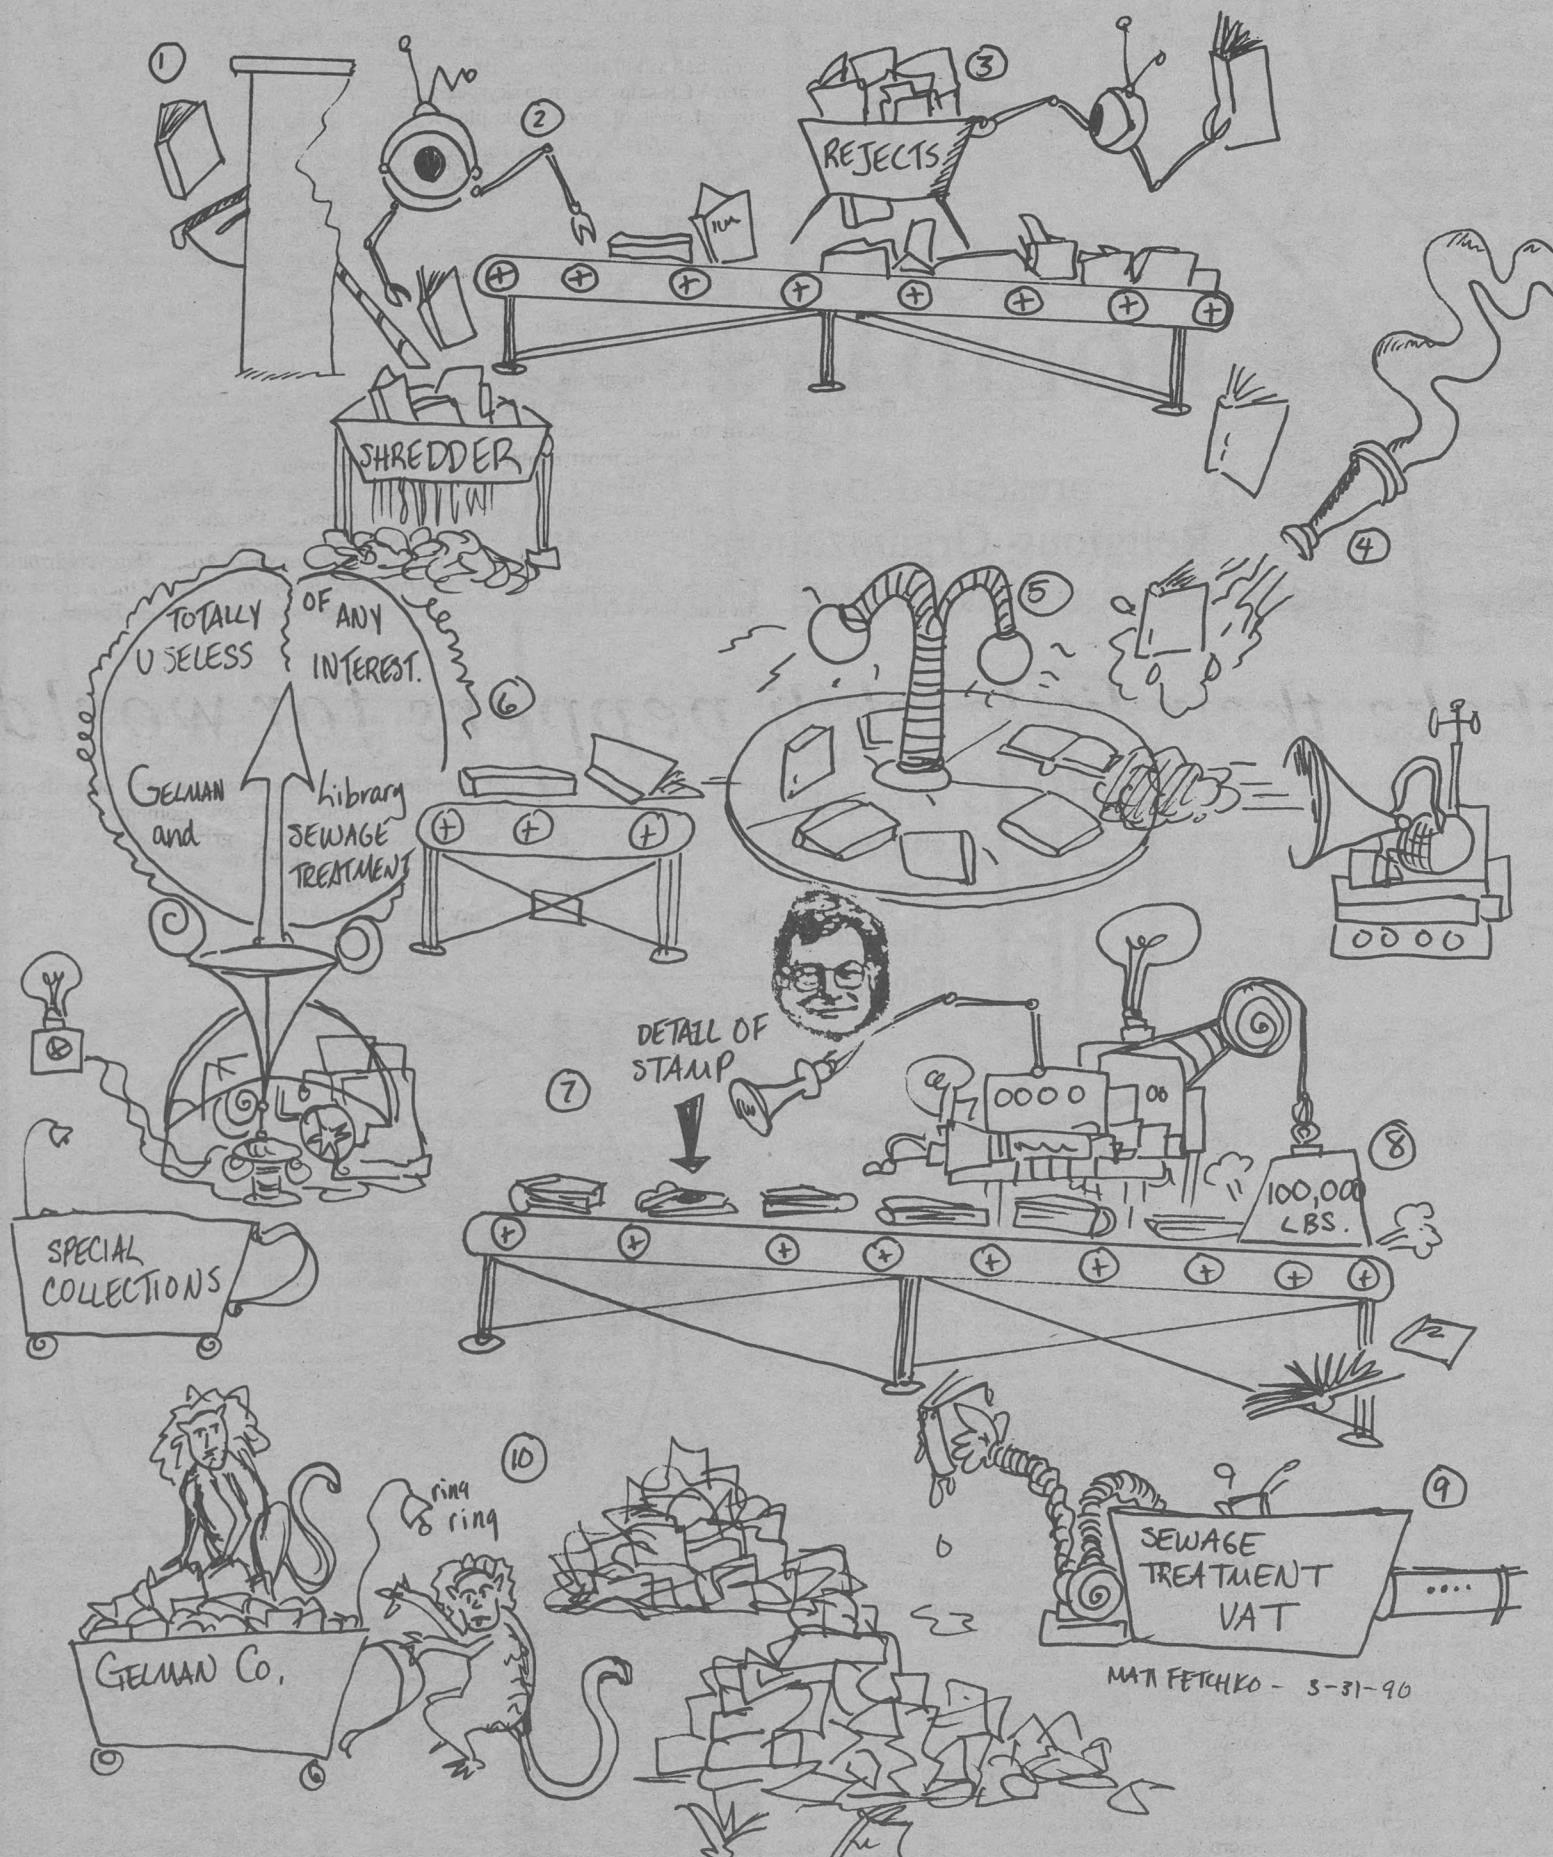

6. Conveyor belt leads to Sort-o-Rama, which routes 90 percent of all books to Special Collections or Reserve Reading desk. Upon reaching destination, these books are listed as checked out.

7. Remaining 10 percent have magnetic computer strip folded, spindled and mutilated. Later, books are passed down another conveyor belt.

8. Volumes then pulverized by 100,000 lb. weight. Discarded pages and covers shelved under “K” for missing.

9. Books next dipped in toxic waste bath (imported from New Jersey, The Garden State) to fade printing and corrode binding.

Chernak to play Fred in new Flintstone flick

Vice President for Stupid and Archaic Support Services Robert Cher-yuc has been cast in the roll of Fred Flintstone in the upcoming film, The Flintstones.

"It's pure conjecture at this point," Cher-yuc said, not fully knowing what the word "conjecture" means. He said the deal was made following a nationwide search and like so many movie stars before him, Cher-yuc was discovered at a drug store counter.

"I was buying some Fleet enemas at People's last week. I was so excited that I shouted, 'Yabba-dabba-do.'" he said. The film's producer happened to be in the store and was taken by his similarity to Fred. "Soon after, the deal was made," Cher-yuc added.

Cher-yuc is not the first GW administrator to star in a feature film. School of Government, Cheating and Big Hair Dean Ben Burpetsy starred in The Yogi Berra Story, playing the baseball idol. Dean of Students Gail Short Shorts

THE NEW Fred Flintstone.

Hanson headlined in the screen version of Dorothy Hammill's World on Ice.

Another GW employee, Genetics professor Stefan Schiff, famous on campus for his baby bio courses, will star in the upcoming film In Dreams: The Roy Orbison Story. "I guess I'll have to dust off my leather pants and cowboy boots," Schiff said.

room sex by saying, "It's a free country damn it and I'll kill anyone who says I can't stick my thang wherever I want."

Students and University officials were appalled by Matluck's predicament, which, according to Hardwell, signifies a great increase in the already significant activity in the men's rooms.

"This is the greatest university in the world," proclaimed GW Student Association Publicist John David Porous. "Where else can two conservative guys walk into bathrooms and fuck each other — not at Harvard! You gotta love it. You gotta want it."

GW President Stephen Joel Upthebutt expressed his disapproval of the activity. "I can't believe what's going on," he said. "If I knew the same thing that goes on in my own bedroom was going on here, I would have equipped security with .44 caliber dildoes years ago."

Erik Worthless, president of the Student Asshole Service, took credit for uncovering Matluck's bathroom activity despite being at a Self Beaters Anonymous convention in Montreal at the time. "I want the recognition. I want to get a life," he said.

JEC fixed elections cauz they're assholes

by Humorless Bitch

The Intrepid Reporter

The GW Spank-It has discovered several election fixes by the Joint-Smoking Elections Committee, led by head egomaniac Dean Dropkick.

Apparently, Dropkick made an agreement with Program Board redhead Mary "Rosenberg's babe" Conkneless to keep the PB elections closed to all contestants that are "male, straight haired or from a country other than England, Ireland or France," thus leaving four uncontested seats. In return, Conkneless agreed to make PB lose Martha's Marathon and get the Grateful Dead for Spring Fling.

"Hey, I can do whatever the hell I want to, (Vice President Robert) Chernhack said so," Dropkick said.

It appears that Marvin Center Do-nothing Board vampire Chris Crowsfeet struck a similar deal with all MCGB nominees, keeping their races uncontested if the MCGB would patrol the men's bathrooms less frequently and remove all fresh, edible food from Marriott "close your eyes and imagine you're at Roy's" dining services.

"What do I care, I only drink blood and I don't get out until after the Rat closes anyway," Crowsfeet said.

When asked to comment, JEC member Sharon Comes said, "Gee, I can see why people would be upset. But Chris and I spent a lot of time talking it over in bed at night, and you've got to see our point of view. Does that make sense? Maybe you should talk to Dean."

JEC Anal Retentive David Lane refused to comment, for which the GW Spank-It is extremely grateful. "Shadow" Erections Committee member Alex de Plane de Plane, when confronted, admitted he was actually Student Bar Association president Jon "Yuppie" Wilson's evil twin.

Law student, Cardinal John O'Goodflyn complained about the unfair elections to the Erections Committee meeting last Monday.

"Delaine's jealous because I'm a better actor. You all hate me. Everybody hates me. I hate you all! Someday, you'll see. You're gonna regret this. Just wait. I'll never forget. I'll have you disbarred! You'll never work in this town again!"

Dropkick responded by saying, "John, you're no Jack Kennedy."

In other JEC news, Dropkick said, "I

Security beat-off

IFC caught with sheep and other disgusting stories

D.C. police raided a closed session of the Interfraternity Council leadership to find members engaged in sticky sex with several shaved sheep in spandex. "Hey, we're hard up and stupid," IFC Imperial Wizard Herbie "Love Bug" Handlemom. "What we do behind close doors is no one's business. And heck, these sheep put up more of a fight than our Little Sisters ever do."

A Gelman library official was apprehended Thursday for being excessively knowledgeable of the library's functions and actually knowing where a specific book was located. "This subversive must be on drugs or something," University Libertarian Sharon Robers said. "We wouldn't hire a smart person anymore than we would keep current periodicals in stock."

Hatchet Editorial Editor Chris Moore was apprehended in the D.C. Morgue Friday night while sucking the embalming jelly out of dead old ladies. Moore was earlier arrested for breaking into GW Hospital's Geriatrics ward and attempting to seduce all women over 80. "They're sexy," he said. "I like to roll around in their wrinkles and lick their Ben Gay."

Ecumenedical Christian Ministry Vamp Lindsey Biddle Gallowes was apprehended and tantalized by Metropolitan Police for running a prostitution ring out of the office of GW's Community Action Network. "This is a real shitty situation I'm in," she bitched. "I can't wait to see what the shitty GW Hatchet and its shitty journalism does with this story. They'll probably exploit this little peccadillo and make it into a big thing."

Third-year law guy and GWUSA Minister of Judicial Security Detain Svenson was arrested yesterday for donning a scraggly beard and hairpiece and impersonating the hulking former Judge Robert H. Pork. Svenson was apprehended after he barreled in the doors of the Supreme Court building and offered to stain his legal briefs if Justice Sandra Dee O'Honor would sit on his face and squirm.

Features Editor Kristi "I bring up the best in guys" Messner, was arrested for assault when she surfed and turfed the hell out of her last member of GW's Men's Basketball team. "It's a good thing Kuester was fired," she said. "He was next."

Passersby caught glimpses of a moonlit love feast between Managing Editor Patrice "sweet cheeks" Sonberg and her hairy love demon "D'main" in the middle of the quad's rose gardens. "It got a little messy, but it was worth it," the couple chortled. Security was called to the scene, but when they arrived, they only watched and laughed at the amazing scene.

Hatchet Editors Mark Vane and John Maynard were arrested for publicly shaving each other's groin in the quad, while Assistant Sports Editor Theodore Gotscha was seen shaving the word "Freeway" on the hairy butt of his boss, Davey Weber. Afterward, Weber returned the favor by putting a Louisiana lip lock on Gotscha's love pork chop.

Editor Brian Reilly, the Hatchet's main slut-bitch, was admitted to GW hospital last night for attempting to airlift all female Hatchet Staff Reporters at once. He found Jeff Goldfarb, Sigma Chi's token Jew, in intensive care for penis trauma for violently masturbating with a pool stick while watching pornographic videos.

BETROTHAL ANNOUNCEMENT

FORMER SPANK-IT HACKS TO WED

Michigan resident and prominent D.C. lawyer lackey Dick Zack, a former Spank-It managing editor, recently proposed to Jupiter resident and layout artist Denise Helooo while the two watched tractor pull races in the Armory and he had to promise to eat only lima beans and granola for the rest of his life. The two were last seen lubricating each other's organs with guacamole yogurt.

that we have the coffee and doughnut service reinstated, they don't need to get out," said Student Bar Association President Jon Wilson.

Freeforall said, on a bimonthly basis, select undergraduates with big hair, color coded clips and security clearances will be allowed into the Frank Burns Law Library to cruise first-year students in order to select possible marriage candidates.

In an exclusive interview with The GW Spank-It, Student Association President John David Morris-the-cat said Friedenthonia's decision to allow undergrads to partake in the riches of the NLC was simply amazing.

"This is the greatest university serving the greatest students in the world, and it just got greater," he said.

never let the other guys vote, anyway, so I'm changing the rules to make myself JEC God-for-life, with all others subservient to me."

His first move under his new title was to change the GWUSA rules so that, instead of a quorum, a minion would be required to hold a senate meeting. Dropkick called the group of 10 Jewish men above the age of 13 "more representative of the student body as a whole." Executive Vice Pencil Jon Flea could not be found for comment, leading some to believe he had simply fled into the background.

Other planned election reforms include a rule requiring all candidates for all offices to be mentioned in every Spank-It story from February 1 to the end of the elections, suggested by SA brownnoser Sonny "wipe that fucking grin off your face" Agassi.

"I agreed because I want to make life a living hell, especially for Vain," Dropkick said.

"This is the greatest university in the greatest city in all the world," GWUSA Doomsayer John David Brainless said. "Our campus elections have taken their cue from those of the city we live in. God bless America."

Tractorbutt tries to touch Yahoo's monkey.

Yahoo, Tractorbutt meet in weighty Wrestle Mania

Blubbery, rotund foes ready to waddle 'n' roll

by The Kids
They Played a Great Game

No food will be safe when GW President Stephen Joel Tractorbutt and Marriott food horder Bill Yahoo put their round fat asses in the square circle as they meet in Wrestle Mania VII at the Smith Center, tonight.

The battle will take place in a mixture of green jello (Tractorbutt's favorite wrestling base) and the leftover grease from the Marriott burgers (Yahoo's preferred substance).

At yesterday's weigh-in, Tractorbutt registered 295 pounds of jiggly blubber on his 5-4 frame, which was considerably less than the 6-8 Yahoo, who pushed the scale to 999 pounds before it busted.

Yahoo will have his hands full — of Tractorbutt's lard — and Tractorbutt will have a lot of problems with Yahoo's multiple chin attack.

Experts say the only way Tractorbutt can win is if he can effectively utilize his famous "Toss My Cookies" move. The maneuver involves Tractorbutt eating cookies he has hidden in his rectum and then getting his opponent in his famous "I Want To Touch Your Monkey" position, where Tractorbutt grabs his opponent's penis and, while jerking him off, pukes wildly all over him. The challenger is usually so disgusted that he gives up.

Yahoo said he has had a lot of people yack on him. "At Marriott it comes with the territory," he laughed.

Yahoo's chins, which at last count totaled 71, should confuse Tractorbutt enough for Yahoo to employ his Capitol Rotund move. Yahoo rolls along the ground and bowls over his foe. He then jams the Marriott salad bar mayonnaise, which has been sitting out for hours, up his rival's nose. Already, 12 men and a woman have died as a result of this procedure, but Tractorbutt is not afraid.

"If that fleshy piece of shit thinks I can't take a couple of jars of mayo up the nose, then he's dumber than I look," he said.

The event is expected to raise close to $400 for GW which will give all of it to new basketball head coach Jimmy "I have a loose" Valvano. Valvano has been ordered to give the money to players so they will not get their money from agents.

"That," he oozed, "would be unethical."

These actions promoted GW Student Association president Jerking Dong Morris to spew, "This is the greatest university in the world. We let in obese slobs and criminals."

Valvano hired to corruptly run Colonials to probation

by Theodore "Gotscha" Beaver
Hatchet Kuester Lover

The search for a new GW men's basketball coach ended yesterday when the Athletic Department announced they had hired highly respected Jim "Payoff" Valvano to replace former "Outstanding" coach John Custard.

GW Athletic Butthead Steve Bilsky said the signing of Valvano, who has coached and conned his way through Iona and North Carolina State, was a real "steal" for the University.

"We really could not ask for a more qualified person than Jim," Bilsky boned. "Sure, Custard ran a clean program, but we really sucked. We are sick of losing. Valvano might put us on probation after two years, but at least we will win and by that time, I will be long gone to a better school."

Valvano said GW offers him many things. "First off, I am happy with the opportunity to coach at George Washington University because it is the only school sad enough to hire me," Valvano said. "I mean, your program here really blows. You have not been to a post-season tournament since 1961, and that year GW went 9-17. That bites. Even though this was the only place that would hire me, it was almost below me to come here. Did I mention you guys really suck that bad?"

"One and 27? Ha-ha! I can't believe it!" he added.

It was reported that Valvano will earn in excess of $25 million a year guaranteed with a clause that says he can leave "any damn time he pleases." That does not include incentives or payouts to be given to players.

"We want to be a big time basketball program, that means cheating here and buying cars and giving money to players there," Bilsky belched. "We are going to do it all."

"We are going to win the shitty Atlantic 10 Conference if it is the last thing I do and believe me, it may be," he added.

"Basically, I have got you guys by the balls," Valvano ejaculated. "I was a desperate coach, yet you guys gave me all this money and power. That is because your team sucks and you are even more desperate than me. I can't believe that I have sunk so low that I am coaching GW."

Valvano met with the team last night and said "they all look tall enough to play basketball." He then showed them a spherical object and said, "This is a basketball," which got several "ooohs" and "ahhs" from the players, who said their old coach never showed them one before.

"Custard never taught us that!" GW's Ellis McNugget said.

"I don't blame the puds, uh, I mean the players for being so shitty," Valvano quipped. "That dildo Custard does not know an enema from his anus, so it is not surprising that I had to teach the team how to dribble."

Valvano received mixed reactions from the players.

"Valvano seems cool, a lot better than that lame coach Custard," GW redsuit sophomore J.J. Wemock bitched. "Maybe I will play more than two minutes next year."

"He is just another prick from North Carolina," McNugget said. "Not only that, but he is a guido too. I wonder if he will pay me? I really could use the money."

GW gets Tractorplex Skyfield

by Mick "The Crotch" Jagger
Hatchet Sports Dummy

In a continuing effort to improve GW's athletic facilities, GW athletic supporter director Steve "Big Spender" Bilsky announced plans for a new "Skyfield" athletic complex, to be christened the Stupid Jerk Tractorplex, which will be home to the school's baseball, soccer, golf, rugby, lacrosse, ultimate frisbee, curling and diving teams.

The complex, whose estimated cost is $666 billion, will be built above the Smith Center and have six different fields for all sports.

"This is my best idea yet," Bilsky gloated. "I mean, I really went out on the limb when I hired, uh, fired Johnny-boy Q-stir, but this is just a product of my brilliant brainstorming."

Money for the complex will come from the $800,000 donated by GW alumni to the sports department, plus a tuition increase that will raise GW's price tag to $100,000 a year for full-time students.

"Stop bitchin', you money-grubbing kids," beefed Bilsky. "You'll get in to all events free and at least we will be number one in something."

The fields will be suspended from two giant letters, one a "G" and the other a "W" that span from Virginia Avenue to Pennsylvania Avenue and 19th to 25th Streets. Entrance to the facility will be gained by taking elevators from the Smith Center to the Tractorplex, 5,000 feet above.

"Sure, its high up, but where else did you want me to put it?" barfed Bilsky. "The Denver Broncos play well in high altitudes, so I, the athletic genius I am, decided to build up."

Bilsky sees no pitfalls that could arise with D.C. government officials over the planned building.

"Let's face facts — this city is a shithole," he heckled. "Our mayor is a crack-head, our president is a pud and the greatest thing about this town is the Redskins. Besides, we own most of it anyway, so we can do whatever we want."

GW baseball coach Jon Dinglberry is happy with the proposed complex, which is to be completed by fall, 1990.

"It's about fuckin' time!" he hollered. "We were only supposed to have gotten a new field three years ago! I've seen the plans and if all goes well, it should be beautiful, but we'll keep the contract at RFK/Auxiliary Field just in case they screw up again."
